

HAPPY NEWS

Your weekly round up of feel-good news from around the world!

Free books found on trams in Manchester for World Book Day

Thousands of free books were given away to celebrate World Book Day last week. Lots of children found the books and special bookmarks on tram seats in Manchester, England as they made their way to school.

Rockstar cooks for homeless people

One of the world's biggest rockstars, Dave Grohl, rocked up with a huge barbecue in Los Angeles, USA to cook for homeless people. He spent 16 hours cooking for 450 people.

Historic agreement signed to protect world's oceans

The UN, an organisation made up of world leaders, has signed a historic treaty to stop the pollution of our seas and protect marine life. The High Seas Treaty was signed in New York, USA on 4th March after 20 years of talks.

Dog achieves world record for longest tongue

Bisbee the dog from Arizona, USA has achieved the Guinness World Record for World's Longest Tongue on a Living Animal. His tongue measures a huge 9.5cm!

New gecko species found in Australia

A new species of gecko that 'looks like a little dragon,' has been discovered on an island near Queensland, Australia. The gecko has been named the Scawfell Island Leaf-Tailed Gecko. It's scientific name is Phyllurus Fimbriatus!

