London Marathon 2023: Best Bits

One of the UK's biggest charity races, the London Marathon, took place at the weekend. The event saw over 47,000 people run 26 miles. Kelvin Kiptum from Kenya ran the course in the fastest time at 2 hours, one minute and 25 seconds. Some people even ran the race in costume - some of our favourites included an ice cream, postbox, a rhino and someone dressed as the Domino's Garlic and Herb dip!

Britain's oldest penguin celebrates turning 35

Britain's oldest penguin has celebrated her 35th birthday at a wildlife sanctuary in Cornwall, England. Spneb, who is the oldest Humboldt's Penguin in the UK, celebrated with an impressive fish themed cake!

SPAIN

Children help to design new school

Children at the Reggio school in Madrid, Spain, have helped design their new school. Architect, Andrés Jaque, spent time listening to the ideas of the children and teachers. Together they have created an environmentally-friendly school with an indoor rainforest! If you could design your school, what would it look like?

AUSTRALIA

Humans like to help, says study

A new study from Australia has shown that humans like to help each other. The study, which looked at cultures from all over the world, found that when we need help, people are more likely to help us than not. Leader of the study, Professor Nick Enfield, said: "On the rare occasions when people do decline, they explain why."

CHINA

World's biggest kite festival takes to the skies

At this amazing kite festival in China, the saying goes that 'anything can fly!' The Weifang International Kite Festival sees people from all over the world come together to fly kites, with hundreds of kites ranging from sea creatures to superheroes! The annual festival is over 2000 years old. This year over 600 kites took to the skies.
