

FREE!

HAPPY NEWS

SCOTLAND

Golden Retrievers gather in the Highlands

Hundreds of adorable Golden Retrievers gathered in the Scottish Highlands to celebrate 150 years of the loving dog breed. The first Golden Retriever was bred in the 1800s by a landowner who needed a dog able to swim long distances. Since then, the gentle doggos have certainly become man's best friend! The event was organised by the Golden Retriever Club of Scotland to bring together dogs and owners.

TEENS

ENGLAND

Owls rescued from Glastonbury named

Two baby owls found hiding under the Pyramid Stage at Glastonbury Festival have been named. They were recovered and took to a rescue centre ran by a wildlife charity. The owls have been called Axl and Slash, named after band members of Guns N' Roses - the band that was playing when they were found! Both owls are doing well.

WORLDWIDE

World Emoji Day

The tenth World Emoji Day took place on 17th July. It takes place on this date every year because it's the date shown on the calendar emoji! The aim of the day is to celebrate emojis and use them as much as possible. Did you know that half of all comments on instagram include emojis?

ENGLAND

Meet the sisters giving away free tomatoes

Two teenage sisters from West Yorkshire have grown and distributed 240 tomato plants to help their local community. Girl Guides Mabel, 13, and Phoebe, 15, spent months nurturing the plants to help people during the cost of living crisis. They have gifted some plants to local residents and some to the Incredible Edible project, which is a community garden where people can help themselves to free vegetables.

AUSTRALIA & NEW ZEALAND

Women's World Cup set to break records

This year's Women's World Cup is set to become the biggest women's sporting event of all time, as the sport has seen a huge surge in support and popularity over the last few years. The tournament is taking place across Australia and New Zealand and, for the first time, there will be 32 teams competing for the trophy. You can follow it between 20th July and 20th August.

